It is fairly obvious that Microsoft has used its monopoly to destroy competition in both its existing markets as well as anticipated future markets. The damage to all of these destroyed potential new companies exceeds billions of dollars. Why then is the DOJ backing off from its job of prosecuting criminals? You even considered helping Microsoft with a judgement that extended its monopoly by giving its products to children. I can't help but wonder who might be issuing your paychecks. Microsoft or Enron?

Break up Microsoft!
